Who Makes the Budget?

IVI ernment has built good roads all over British Columbia. Mr. Strachan says the Government has given a "fair deal" in road construction only to the Kamloops and Okanagan areas represented by the Premier and Mr. Gaglardi. But this argument between the two party leaders does not touch the real issue raised by the Government's latest figures.

In the last fiscal year the Leg-islature voted $57,255,000 for roads and other forms of construction. The Government did not spend $9,-679,000 of this amount. It used the money to pay off direct provincial debt and to pile up a surplus of $5,147,336.

Whether it was wise to build fewer roads than the Government had planned in order to reduce direct debt is a matter of opinion. Two facts, however, are clear:

First, the provincial budget is no longer under the complete control of the Legislature as it should be. Mr. Bennett asks the Legislature authorize certain expenditures but he does not necessarily make them. alone decides, within broad limits, how much money will be spent. If the budget voted by the Legislature does not suit his convenience he changes it without notice. The oldest right of an elected Legislature under the British parliamentary system is thus blandly disregarded.

able in the last year to use $18,-906,000 in paying off the last of the direct debt (while its agencies were piling up gigantic indirect debts, guaranteed by the Govern-ment). Even after this heavy expenditure Mr. Bennett reported a surplus of $5,147,336, having collected in taxes $20 millions more than he had estimated.

The Government was rolling in revenues, refusing to spend the money voted by the Legislature for roads and buildings and yet it says that it cannot possibly assume the cost of schools. It says further that the Liberal Party is irresponsible in promising to lift school costs from the home owner.

From Mr. Bennett's own figures it is obvious that with a little econelsewhere the Government could take over the school costs. The relief of the home owner, a saving of from a third to a half of his municipal taxes, is manageable within the present provincial tax

Mr. Bennett prefers to use his revenues elsewhere in the belief that his huge and mounting expenditures will be more popular than a tax reduction on homes. But his judgment on that point may turn out wrong when the home owner looks at his large municipal tax bill this year and realizes that it will surely go up again next year if Mr. Bennett is in charge.

Do We Accept It With a Shrug?

CANADIANS HAVE RECORD-ed another shocking highway death toll over the Labor Day weekend-at least 55 killed in crashes in a total of four score fatalities during the holiday.

The number of highway deaths is as high as 1955, previously the worst on record, is 25 per cent above last year and well over the estimate of the Canadian Highway Safety Council Safety Council.

Periods such as the Labor Day weekend are marked by these statistical reports. They emphasize the dangers that exist for motorists. But they are not the only occasions on which people meet violent death in cars. The toll mounts day in and day out—and will continue to grow as long as Canadians show no greater concern for the lives claimed in accidents than they do at

If death on the highway is accepted as one of the unavoidable facts of the day—unfortunate but something that has to happen— there will be little hope for im-provement. On the other hand, if every driver recognizes the fact presented by safety officials—that most accidents should never hap-pen—and takes that little extra care which is the margin between safety and danger, the fatal trend can be reversed. Safety is an individual concern, a responsibility of everyone. Once that responsibility is properly shouldered, the lists of dead will shrink in newspapers the day after

The Needs of NATO

DRESIDENT DE GAULLE, I whose policies have done as much as anything to prevent NATO forces from reaching their scheduled strength, has come out in favor of a complete revision of NATO. He also calls for a NATO force based on separate, nationally identified units instead of the closely integrated force which has been the West's objective.

These are basic considerations effective revision of the Western organization must go farther than its military arrangements. It must put life into the NATO clauses dealing with economic and political co-operation—as Mr. Lester Pearson has long urged. Only thus can the group achieve full strength and the full benefits to be derived from such an association.

So far the progress toward such a goal has been negligible, yet the need obviously is greater than ever.

Tim Buck's statement to the press in Vancouver came as no surprise to supporters of the CCF. Since the beginning of the current election campaign in E.C. which is proving that no matter in which direction it will go, it will not be very far in the direction of Social Credit, the CCF has expected a belowthe belt punch similar in kind to the one dealt in towards the end of the provin cial election which brought Social Credit

At that time the punch was delivered just late enough to prevent the CCF obtaining news coverage in its own defence; this time, however, unless there is more to come, those who have sponsored it, obviously in a panic about the way the tide is running against Social Credit, have been premature in their timing, which should give the CCF an even break.

Go Grit! What were we going for nearly 24 years? What group of office holders got so indolent, so blind, so lethargic and complacent that in 1952 they made it possible for Bennett's boys to move right in.

There was a time when an MLA could be approached and community problems be discussed, but the Liberals ended all that (except during elections). They were the boys that sowed the seeds of government by bureaucracy; let officialdom be king let half the rowleficialdom be king, let half the popula-tion in government offices; built bigger

They undermined their own authority by relegating their elected positions to some double-talking bureaucrat, thus tinding themselves out on the street and the bureaucrats multiplying like earwigs.

Next Week's Poll Could Prove to Be the Most Unpredictable in Provincial History

By LESLIE FOX

THE guessing game of who will win the provincial election Sept. 12 is developing into a real sport. Next week's poll could prove to be most unpredictable in the history of the province.

For the first time four major parties have fielded virtually full slates of candidates and are making all-out efforts to capture control of the government.

B.C. has had four-party fights before—in 1952 and 1953—but in those years the transferable vote was in operation. This time the issue will be decided on the simple majority basis, with the top man in a constituency taking the honors no matter how small a percent-age of the votes he gets. There have been large fields in in-dividual ridings before, but not where there has been a major party behind every one of them. Usually the extras have been independents, or others with personal attraction in their own dis-

Purely on an arithmetical basis, it is obvious that in a four-way fight a candidate receiving as little as 30% of the vote, or even a bit less, can win a seat if the opposing candidates split up the rest of the votes equally.

Extending this to the election as a whole, any of the four parties could win the whole contest by gaining around 30% of the popular vote if it was spread over enough of the 42 rid-has continued its policies as in the ings to provide the slim margins necessary to capture a majority.

Social Credit and CCF, in their positions as government and opposition, dominated the 1956 election. However, since then there have been some alter-ations in the political balance which create interest and uncertainty in the Here is what happened in 1956,

It has carried out numerous large public works undertakings, it has completed its change in debt policy by shifting all borrowings to government guaranteed "contingent liabilities," it has maintained a balanced budget under high revenues, and has been involved in one serious scandal. In B.C. the general experience of gov-ernments has been that after two terms they face a strong fight to maintain themselves in office.

2. The CCF party has maintained 2. The CCF party has maintained its position as the "official opposition" under a leader who has acquired more experience. But more important, it has begun its formal "marriage" with the organized labor movement. The B.C. organized labor movement. The B.C. election is to form the first major test of how this arrangement is to be received by the public. It is a completely new departure in Canadian political affairs. Very few political experts are ready to predict whether the CCF as a political party will be but as highered.

has seen the great upheaval in Ottawa, where its long reign gave place to John Diefenbaker's Conservatives. While B.C. has never particularly followed the federal scene in its political likes and dislikes, the intervening four years have seen first the Liberal debacle in the national capital, then the sudden resurgence of the party in Quebec and New Brunswick, where it has captured provincial control. Now the party, under a new B.C. leader, is seeking to overcome the defeats of the 50's in the knowledge that there is a tide, at least elsewhere in Canada, in its direction.

4. The Progressive Conservatives are possibly the most incalculable factor in the campaign, With only 22 candidates last time they had no chance of elec-tion, and in fact, put up only a token fight. Since then their party has swept over the national scene like a whirl-wind and holds an unprecedented majority in Parliament. While it should again be stressed that provincial politics do not always follow national politics in B.C., it must be conceded that the Conservative national victory, after 23 years political party will be hurt or hindered in the wilderness, has revitalized much by the plan.

It must be accepted that each one of the parties will be a factor in one degree or another on Sept. 12. How could these swings operate? As it is generally agreed among political experts, most elections work on the theory that the electors either

In B.C.'s case there are three oppo sitions—each with at least some amoun of backing on a provincial-wide basis. A government faced with a three-way split in its opposition could nor-mally consider itself fortunate, and almost certain to be returned to power, provided of course the split was on a broad basis.

The complicating factor involved in B.C., however, is that there is another predict, enterprise and the modified form socialism proposed by the CCF party.

Three parties—Social Credit, Liberals, Conservatives, are basically considered free enterprise parties. The CCF is the other.

The nomination of four major parties under single vote conditions presents B.C. with the most peculiar political background it has ever had for an election. It has made for the widest range of political guesses within recent memory.

Another point, perhaps only incidental is the very heavy registration of voters. This may reflect nothing more than the increase in population brought about by immigration and natural growth in the last four years.

But it savors, too, of the knowledge that the election has created a very wide interest, and could have an outcome that no one, at the moment, can

Birdy at the Alamo

WASHINGTON - I have just received through the mail, absolutely without charge, an authentic reproduction of a three page advertisement which appeared in the July 4 issue which ap-of Life magazine. It was sent to me by a thoughtful Hollywood press agent who must own how much I admire fine art and great literature. This ad had some of both.

Two of its pages were filled with a picture of the Alamo, the famous mission at San Antonio, where a small band of Texans stood off the Mexican army for 13 days and then died with their boots on. The other page contained an essay on the struggle, which was written by Russell Bird-well, the aforementioned press agent, and which was entitled "There were no ghost writers at the Alamo."

I somehow got the impression that the advertisement was intended to draw attention to a new motion picture about the Alamo. But what drew my attention was a disclosure of great historical significance.

I am fairly familiar with Texas history and I was aware that the Alamo defenders were short of guns and ammunition. But I never knew until I read Birdwell's tone poem that the poor souls also had to get along without ghost writers.

personally, would not think for a minute of consulting a man like that whose behavior so closely resembles that of a quack. Such a man is always angling to get as patients persons whose names he can use later in order to get a wide publicity. Usually, his treatment is one of no proved value, and often it is one that was tried by many men and given up long ago. According to the accounts I have read, the Swiss is injecting into every patient who comes a suspension of ground-up cells taken from a part of an unborn animal. If the patient has a bad heart, he gets a pap of heart cells, and if he has a diseased liver he gets liver cells. This, of course, is a rather silly idea such as might occur to an African witch

I understand that the able physicians of Europe have no faith in the man or his technic.

Had it not been for that, they might have held out a week or two longer.

If Birdwell will search the records closely, I'll bet he also will find that there were no press agents at the Alamo. But just for kicks, let's imagine what might have happened if Cok William Travis, the Alamo commander, had had a public relations adviser on his staff.

As the scene opens, it is near the end of the siege and Travis has summoned his PR man, whom we shall call Birdy Russellwell, for a final conference.

Travis: "We can't hold out much longer, Birdy. I am going to tell the men that they are free to go if they so choose. To stay means certain death."

Russellwell: "Don't just ask them if they want to leave, Bill. Draw a line on the floor with your sword and invite all who want to stay to step across it. It'll look better in the newspapers that way."

Travis exits to perform this duty and re-turns with word that every man has decided to fight to the finish.

Russellwell: "The public won't buy that, Bill. It's just a replay of the old Ther-mopylae bit. It needs more dramatic conast. Somebody has got to be a deserter."

Today, a Rumanian woman physician is claiming that she can rejuvenate people with injections of procaine, but, as I said here a while ago, very few physicians here can get excited about her technic because here it was tried out thoroughly and for many years, and then given up.

I think we can say this, that anything that a quackish physician is doing in Europe could easily be done here, and done for much less money, if only a reputable physician could be found to do the work. If a man's family physician says he has no faith in the technic and refuses to use it look out! As I have said, a few years ago any physician could easily have performed one of "Dr." Brinkley's $750-operations in 20 minutes-but he wouldn't do such work because he knew it would do no good.

Some people tell me of spells they have their saliva keeps running so steadily that they have to keep swallowing. At night, they can hardly get to sleep. As many say; otherwise they are very well, and their physician can find no disease in them. The suggestion I would make is that they keep a record to see if, shortly before the salivation came, they ate some particular ood. Years ago, I used to be much anoyed by attacks of salivation. Then, when I kept a record, I found that with the saliva-tion I had a canker sore in my mouth. Also, found that always before the spell I had eaten chocolate. Some years ago I quit eating chocolate, and since then I have been free from canker sores and from salivation

Some of the gunners who started popping cartridges Saturday morning ran into good coveys and managed to come back with limits, but most sportsmen found it tough hunting and had only moderate bags to show for their trigger work over the three-day holiday weekend. Big coveys appeared to be few and far between and many veterans said took a lot of walking between shots and that blue grouse

With blue grouse, willow (ruffed) grouse and band-tailed pigeons all legal targets, it was the blues that received the most attention from the shotgun brigade, and only a few willows and pigeons were taken through game branch ch ing stations set up Saturday and Sunday at Campbell River,

Examination of birds indicated that the later hatches of grouse fared poorly and a smaller than average number of small birds were included in the bags.

Working to increase knowledge of the habits of blue grouse, Jim Bendell banded and released more than 200 hens and chicks in the Campbell River area during the summer. Any information about the banded birds is important to the game branch and officials request that any hunters who downed handed grouse forward the bands, with a note explaining where the birds were shot, to Bendell at the University of British Columbia zoology department or to any game branch office,

The South African golf star exploded from sandfraps like a true champion, and all the while gawked and marvelled at the seaside scenery when he toured the Victoria Golf Club course Saturday.

And just so he wouldn't forget his visit to Vancouver Island, the 24 year-old pro had a friend crank up his movie camera. Like any tourist would, Player specifically instructed his camera-wielding friend to make certain he didn't miss any of the panorama (including the smooth Player swing) at Oak Bay's picturesoue "land's end."

The result of Saturday's exhibition, with Stan Leonard and Gorge Vale's Joe Pryke teaming up to defeat Player and Oak Bay's Laurie Carroll, appears incidental.

Player's gentlemanly behaviour captivated almost everyone if the large field.

Both Gary and Leonard were quick to urge other movie camera fans to take as many shots as they liked just as long as they didn't start cranking in the midst of a backswipe.

One golf fan was heard to say that perhaps Player overdid his gentlemanly behaviour bit when he joined Carroll in a sandtrap by hooking his drive off the first tee. That hook came after the personable South African demonstrated hooks and slices for 20 minutes with nary

MODERN TRANSPORTATION DEPENDS ON

Nickel alloy steels are the strong, tough, durable materials that carry the load in modern transportation. On railway rolling stock; nickel steels are used for truck frames, couplers, axles and other heavy duty equipment and for car bodies for long life. They're used for automotive transmission and engine parts on cars, trucks and buses; for undercarriages and engine parts of planes; for the propeller shafts and machinery of ocean-going ships and lake freighters; for the structural steel in modern bridges. In fact, wherever the load is great or where hard wear and severe abuse are factors in modern transportation, nickel alloy steels are on the job.

Nickel stainless steels are the glamour metals of the transportation industry. It's the shimmering lustre of nickel stainless steel you see on the sleek, modern streamlined trains and buses. Stainless steel is as practical and efficient as it is beautiful. It's strong and has exceptional resistance to corrosion. Never needs painting and tends to wash clean in every rainfall. It resists the corrosive effects of acids and alkalies in modern tank trucks. It makes beautiful, easy-toclean hardware and ornamental accessories on ships, buses, trains and planes.

Nickel high temperature alloys are the sinews of modern transportation—they withstand the searing temperatures and the extreme stresses of high speed jet engine parts. They play a vital role in the components of the power plants of atomic ships and submarines.

Third Defeat

For Passmore

On Hall Vote

Saanich Council Tuesday for a third time rejected a motion by Coun. Leslie Passmore to hold a plebiscite in December asking ratepayers if they want the Swan Lake site for construction of a new municipal hall in five years time.

The plebiscite also would have asked ratepayers to ap-

Coun. Passmore, who has steadily opposed council's pol-

Council holds that property should be acquired first before asking ratepayers to approve the construction of a municipal hall. It also feels that rate-payers in the scattered municipality would never agree on a location for a hall.

Reeve George Chatterton

said the property should be bought before land values in the municipality go to high.

Watered-Down

Wins Approval

Saanich council's controver-sial leash bylaw to keep a tight rein on stray dogs, re-ceived final reading at a Saan-ich council meeting Tuesday.

But the bylaw was watered down from its original form, due mainly to objections from the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

In its present form, it re-quires that owners keep their dogs on leashes on beaches, around public buildings and commercial areas.

In areas not mentioned, dogs must be under "effective and immediate control of a responsible person at all

The original bylaw would have required that owners keep their dogs on leashes whenever they ventured on public property.

'In passing the bylaw, council served notice that if the new restrictions did not con-

School District No. 62 (Sooke)

Court of Revision 1960-1961 Voters' List

The Court of Revision on the 1960-61 Voters' List will be held at the School Board Office, 2227 Sooke Road, Victoria, B.C., on Tuesday, September 20th, 1960, commencing at 7.30 p.m. Any person who wishes to appeal in respect of the list of electors shall file an appeal in writing with the undersigned before the twentieth day of September, 1960.

Secretary-Treasurer, School District No. 62 (Sooke), 2227 Sooke Road,

WHAT WOULD YOU DO IF YOU WERE IN THIS POSITION?

You are in Toronto, New York or London . . . or maybe in Vancouver.

You are trusted as a professional manager or advisor with moneys saved up by people or by companies of shareholders. Your job is to place these savings wisely.

In the past you have put some very large sums of money in B.C. (This and more money like it helped make our province for a long time the fastest growing in Canada.)

You have been disturbed by the 1958 and 1959 record of strikes in B.C. But even more disturbing to you is the prospect that, if the Socialist CCF party were to win in the coming Provincial Election, an ambitious small group of paid officers of labor unions now dominating and financing the CCF would control the Government of British Columbia. Joining union leader power overlabor and industrial relations with political power over all property and lives in British Columbia, this group would have dangerous strength.

So, wondering whether to invest more money in British Columbia or to put it in Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario or elsewhere — without such risk-what would you do?

To help these managers of savings make decisions favorable to B.C., British Columbians should vote to reject the idea of State Socialism, run by a handful of union officers.

The otherwise dull, three speaker election meeting in support of Reeve Murdoch, also addressed by Works Minister W. N. "I, personally, think it's an excellent job."

Plans of the commission encompass a "terrific area," he said, from Brotchle Ledge to Brentwood and they "concern everyone."

He did not elaborate.

The sources said violent clashes were going on between Kalonji followers and soldiers sent there by Lumumba, with about 1,000 men involved. Casualties were reported heavy, although no details were only just holding their own and if strong winds arise the fires again will rage out of control, officials said.

WARRANTS ISSUED FOR LUMUMBA ARREST?

BRUSSELS (AP)-The Belgian Radio said today warrants are believed to have been issued for the arrest of Premier Patrice Lumumba and five of his ministers. The radio said the warrants were issued at the request of President Kasavubu.

The radio said its correspondent at Leopoldville reported that Moise Tshombe, president and premier of secessionist Katanga Province, was expected soon at Brazzaville to meet Kasavubu. Brazzaville, across the Congo River from Leopold-ville, is the capital of the Congo Republic of the French community.

Elsenhower said Russia was sending planes and other equipment into the Congo for military purposes and the action was motivated by "the Soviet Union's political designs in Africa." He said the United States "takes a most serious view" of this action.

He called on Moscow to "lend its support instead" to efforts short of expectations, he said. He interpreted it as an indication that the housing demands of the country are being met.
